The Australian-born singer-songwriter Emma Hewitt fuses electronic beats and ambient soundscapes with live instrumentation and her inimitable vocals. Her distinctive style has earned Hewitt a legion of passionate fans around the world as she continues to write and release music with some of the most respected names in electronic dance music. Tonight, she will be playing at Live RCA Bangkok, one of the newest clubs on Bangkok’s biggest party street, the Royal City Avenue. The club is well known for its focus on live dance music and for regular performances by internationally celebrated artists and DJs, such as Fritz Kalkbrenner.

KHON-THAI
CLASSICAL MASKED DANCE
Dates: 24 & 25 September
Starting time: 7.30 p.m.
Venue: Sala Chalermkrung Royal Theatre
www.salachalermkrung.com
With live Thai music, elaborate costumes and a combination of singing, dancing, acting and acrobatics, Khon-Thai Classical Masked Dance gives a fascinating insight into traditional Thai culture, as well as one of Thailand’s finest art forms. Khon is a traditional type of masked dance that originally was performed for the royal court only. The story is based on a Hindu epic that tells the tale of a great war between Rama, the seventh incarnation of the Hindu god Vishnu, and Thotsakan, a demon king. The authentic show, which features more than 60 skilled performers, is presented at the Sala Chalermkrung Royal Theatre every Thursday and Friday.

TRAIN NIGHT MARKET RATCHADA
Dates: 24 & 25 September
Starting time: 5 p.m.
Venue: Ratchadapisek Road, behind the Esplanade Cinemax
www.nightmarketbangkok.com
The Train Night Market Ratchada is one of the many night and flea markets that fill the streets of Bangkok over weekends. However, its creative and nostalgic atmosphere makes it something special in the city’s market scene and attracts tourists, hipsters and vintage fans alike. The original train night market, or Talad Rod Fai, used to be situated on the grounds of an abandoned goods station, which gave it its name. This new branch of the market, also called Talad Nud Rod Fai, is centrally located close to the Thailand Cultural Centre MRT station and offers antiques, second-hand clothes, vintage toys and much more. Aside from shopping, you can enjoy a variety of delicious street food, have a drink in one of the many unconventional bars made of VW buses and freight containers, or listen to some live music.
